Based off of 1970's whiskey running in the United States, new Ontario Game Company, KIKO Gaming, released a new text turn based Real Time Strategy [RTS] game called Whiskey Mountain Wars. If you ever wanted to become a whiskey runner but can not afford the jail time for bootleg whiskey, now is the chance to do it safely in the comfort of your own home.

"It's very exciting and fatally addicting." says Don Wedderspoon; golf professional.

Whiskey Mountain Wars, released on August 27th 2009, is an online text based MMORPG/RTS game which will challenge gamers with a multitude of quests, turn based attacks, and a unique system of jobs that will benefit you and the clan you join.

"It's the World Of Warcraft for text based RPG's", says Devan Penner-Woelk one of the games developers.

Whiskey Mountain Wars is a community based RTS; a player can play individually, however, some of the special features of the game are clan based, meaning, you would have to join together with other members of your clan in order to complete tasks, or quests. Whiskey Mountain Wars is like no other browser based text MMORPG type game before it. It features a new and creative story line, a new concept on jobs and skill set, a more community/clan based approach and new concepts that no game has ever tried before.

It has combined the best out of each game into one thrilling new game that is sure to entertain even the most seasoned RPG players. Even the language of the game will be in 'hillbilly' speak to stay in line with the story line and concepts of the game. Whiskey Mountain Wars has been in development for about four months and has all ready been through rigorous testing on its concepts and designs for a good portion of that time. Version 1.0 is a better, cleaner and more entertaining game then the original planning stages of Whiskey Mountain Wars. Our team of gamers has been working strong to create entirely new concepts never seen in the text based RTS/RPG realm.
