Leading logo design company moves their Cleveland office into the city center and opens a new studio in Columbus.

Started in 1998 as a two man company, Logo Design Works has become a leading provider of logo design and corporate identity solutions to small businesses.

To accommodate the growing team size (including professional logo designers and graphic artists), Logo Design Works has moved to a new location in the Cleveland City Center - Superior Ave. East.

Logo Design Works has also split up its web design team and opened a new studio on Olentangy River Road in Columbus. Incidentally, LDW has an office in Columbus for over 3 years before moving to Cleveland.

"We are growing at an average rate of 20% year over year!", Said Mike Evans, the company spokesman. "Demand for online logo design services and our affordable yet high quality service offering has led to an amazing increase in the number of customers."

"Website design has also become a major part of the core business and that is why we had to split the website design design and get their own studio.", continues Mike. "That way, we can ensure that the workflow flow for each design discipline is separate and ensures the right kind of quality control."

Even though, the company is 100% internet based, LDW is actively looking to partner with local companies to provide back office design processing. Local web design, print and merchandising companies can utilize LDW's awesome team of logo designers for fulfillment of their identity projects.
