Addiction to prescription drugs is on the rise, with more deaths attributed to prescription overdoses occurring last year than those from heroin and cocaine, making services like Treatment-Centers.net more important than ever.

September 2009 – Free services offered by websites such as Treatment-Centers.net are becoming more and more useful as a growing number of people struggle with an addiction problem. In fact, overdose rates for people addicted to prescription medication are now higher than those associated with the abuse of heroin and cocaine.

Although there has been a lot of media coverage in recent years surrounding celebrity deaths caused by drug overdoses, the problem is more far-reaching, affecting people from all types of backgrounds across the country.

The Office of National Drug Control Policy at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reports that there are approximately 20,000 deaths a year related to drugs in the United States - the leading cause of fatal overdoses being drugs prescribed by a physician.

Connecting addicts and their families with the help they need - be it Alcohol Treatment or treatment for drug addiction - is the most important step in healing the thousands of people suffering with an addiction problem. In many cases it can be difficult or almost impossible for people to find the right treatment program.

This is why the service provided by Treatment-Centers.net is an effective solution for finding a good program, and linking treatment facilities in need of an affordable online marketing campaign with effective and innovative advertising solutions.

The website specializes in helping addiction treatment organizations market their programs and increase visibility on the Internet. The site provides Internet marketing consulting in addition to advertising products and services on the site's treatment directory.

By listing a program in the directory of Treatment-Centers.net, treatment facilities automatically reap the benefits of the site's popularity, which is much more effective than simply having a banner ad placed somewhere on the site. Treatment Centers provides value to visitors, who are specifically looking for treatment centers for their addictions.

A listing on the site has been proven to be extremely successful at providing huge link value for the listed sites, more so than other advertising and marketing services. Also, the prices offered for a listing in the directory are competitive compared to other marketing services in the industry.
