HCG hormone study reveals secret to long-term weight loss

Washington, DC, September 2009 -- HCGSupplies.com, a pioneer of online HCG mixing supplies and instruction, is proud to be on the forefront of the HCG weight loss revolution by offering quality HCG-related products and accessories. Although many are just now learning what it can do for their bodies, HCG has been recognized by scientists for decades as an effective way to lose weight, control appetite and manage weight loss.

HCG (Human Chorionic Gonadotropin) is a natural hormone produced during pregnancy and is used medically for the treatment of certain conditions. Research, such as the Asher-Harper study, has shown that people using daily HCG injections, along with a very low calorie diet, can lose a pound per day of body fat as well as experience a marked decrease in hunger.

"There's been a lot written lately about HCG dieting so we urge dieters to learn the truth from unbiased studies like the Asher-Harper Study," said Jim Sparks, marketing director, HCGSupplies.com. "Dr. Simeons' Pounds and Inches is also a wonderful source of information on the HCG Diet Protocol."

For decades, studies have highlighted the positive effects of HCG for weight loss and appetite control. One of the most thorough of these is the Asher-Harper Study, which was conducted in 1973, and is garnering recent attention by the weight loss industry. The study investigated forty female volunteers, all of whom were trying to lose weight using a low calorie diet and exercise. Twenty of the volunteers were given daily (six days a week) 125 IU injections of HCG, while the others were given placebo injections. After six weeks, the volunteers on the HCG injections lost significantly more weight than those on the placebo. Furthermore, the study showed that those who were given the HCG injections felt "little to no hunger" while feeling "good to excellent" throughout the day.

Offering all the latest HCG supplies and accessories, HCGSupplies.com was founded to give customers not only the best products for weight loss, but also thorough support so that people can properly understand how HCG can be used effectively in weight loss. While HCGSupplies.com does not sell HCG, the web site sells everything a person might need to properly use the product. Syringes, vials, HCG mixing kits, various mixing solvents, HCG recipes, and much more. For more information on HCG and to view available products please visit <http://www.hcgsupplies.com>.
