People are winning the fight against drug and alcohol dependency through Sacramento drug rehab and alcohol rehab San Jose with their successful recovery programs. Alcoholism and drug dependency are evil twins that continually plague an increasing number of people in Sacramento, San Jose and in many other places. Drug statistics show that approximately 80% of crimes against people and property in the US can be traced to drug addiction and alcohol abuse. Studies also show that alcohol abuse frequently leads to drug addiction, which means that most drug addicts abused alcohol before becoming dependent on drugs.

Dependents need money to support their substance abuse habits. According to findings from San Jose drug rehab, when cravings worsen, each dependent spends as much as $200 per day. When funds run out, dependents do everything to sustain their irrepressible urge to consume illicit substances. Loved ones, parents, and the families of these dependents suffer from the loss of sobriety of those enslaved to the evil twins of drug and alcohol. Harassment, crime and violence happen in the family and in the community. Plus, more crimes are committed when these addicts are high on drugs.

Alcoholism and drug addiction are serious problems. As a result, effective treatment and rehabilitation programs must be aggressively pursued in Sacramento drug rehab and San Jose drug rehab while there is hope. When the addict is sober, the family must find tactful ways and means to convince the addict to get clean by seeking professional help and submit to rehabilitation treatment. They must be willing to give all the needed support necessary to save the addict's life.
